

IT Business Analyst Intern

Why Join Us?

Help shape Compassion's efforts by researching two emerging areas: technical training (triggered by a recent organizational change) and external strategic partnerships (bias towards technology enablement of Compassion's mission).

You will:

- Support two Principles in their efforts to establish technical training curriculums and strategic partnerships
- Perform external research in diverse areas inclusive of technical training alternatives and non-profit partnerships
- Develop recommendations based on deductive research
- Investigate alternatives for integrating recommendations into existing systems
- Provide support by coordinating efforts in specific areas such as training calendars, training courses, and partner reviews.
- Assist with internal IT communications by grooming and improving internal communication channels and content (SharePoint)

You have:

- Ability to develop creative ideas and approaches from specified strategies
- Ability to take direction and work independently on assigned tasks
- Ability to synthesize divergent data and opinions into concise recommendations
- Intellectual curiosity that drives you to seek insight
- Strong communication skills (verbal and written documentation)
- Strong organizational skills, teamwork, attention to detail, and analytical thinking skills

You study:

- Information Systems, Computer Science, Business, Public Policy, or related field of study
